

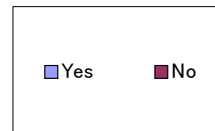

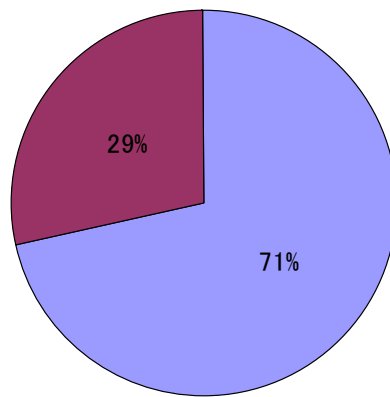

Exhibit 2

Survey results for Category No.1 to No.6

Category No.1
Questions regarding the controls of US-origin items in your company
(a-0)
Your company has ever considered procuring or designing-in US-origin parts or components.

1-a-0

Category No.1

Questions regarding the controls of US-origin items in your company
(a-1)

You have ever elected non-US items because the US-origin items were listed on the CCL and required a license from BIS for your exports of the products. (This includes the case you designed out the US-origin items.)

Category No.1

Questions regarding the controls of US-origin items in your company
(a-2)

You have ever elected non-US items even in the case that the US-origin items were listed on the CCL but no license was required since the items were non-controlled for the destination or a License Exception was applicable, because you considered you would possibly export the products in the future to other countries that require a license. (This includes the case you designed out the US-origin items.)

Category No.1
Questions regarding the controls of US-origin items in your company
(a-3)

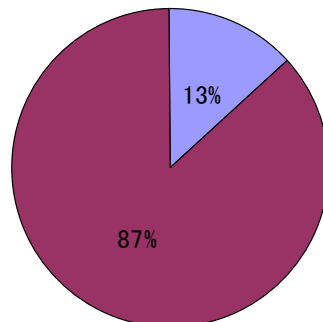

You have simply elected non-US items disregarding the classification of the US-origin items, etc. because you thought it's more efficient and cost effective. (This includes the case you designed out the US-origin items.)

1-a-3

Category No.1
Questions regarding the controls of US-origin items in your company
(a-4)

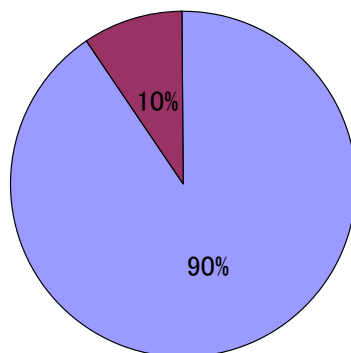

You have ever elected non-US items even in the case that you came to know that the US-origin items were non-CCL items as a result of the classification you conducted or because the supplier so informed to you, considering that the US controls would possibly be intensified even on those non-controlled items. (This includes the case you designed out the US-origin items.)

1-a-4

Category No.1
Questions regarding the controls of US-origin items in your company
(b-1)

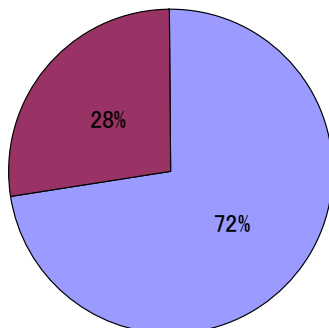

You would elect non-US items in case the US-origin items were listed on the CCL and the intended export required a license. (This includes the case you would design out US-origin items.)

1-b-1

Category No.1
Questions regarding the controls of US-origin items in your company
(b-2)

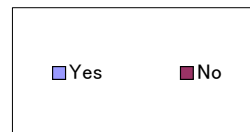

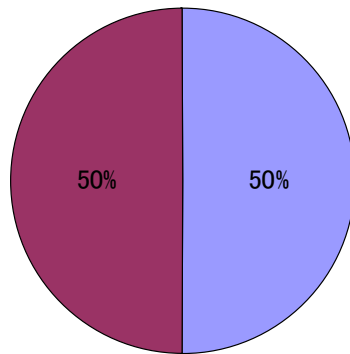

You would elect non-US items even in the case that the US-origin items were listed on the CCL but no license was required since the items were non-controlled for the destination or a License Exception was applicable, because you would possibly export the products in the future to other countries that require a license. (This includes the case you would design out the US-origin items.)

1-b-2

Category No.1
Questions regarding the controls of US-origin items in your company
(b-3)

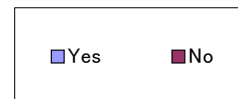

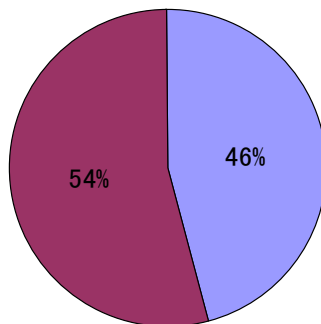

You would simply elect non-US items disregarding the classification of the US-origin items etc. because you think it's more efficient and cost effective. (This includes the case you would design out the US-origin items.)

1-b-3

Category No.1
Questions regarding the controls of US-origin items in your company
(b-4)

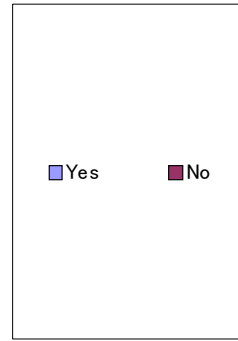

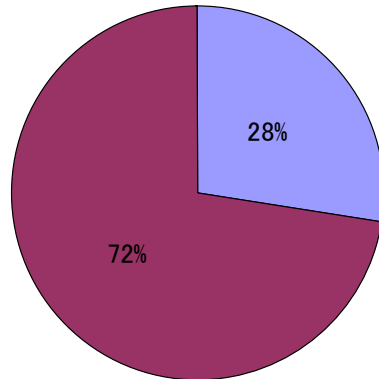

You would still elect non-US items even if you came to know that the US-origin items were non-CCL items as a result of the classification you conducted or because the supplier so informed to you, considering that the US controls would be intensified even on those non-controlled items. (This includes the case you would design out the US-origin items.)

1-b-4

Category No.2
Questions regarding the control of US-origin items by your customers
(a)

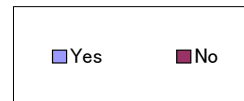

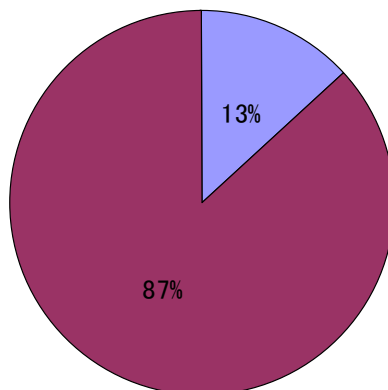

It seems your customers are not implementing any controls based on the US regulations, since you have never been asked from them whether those are US-origin or not.

2-a

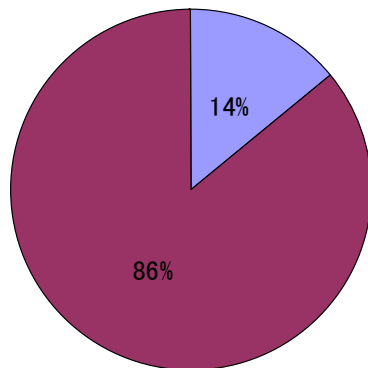

Category No.2
Questions regarding the control of US-origin items by your customers
(b-1)

Your customers have refused to buy your products because they are of US-origin.

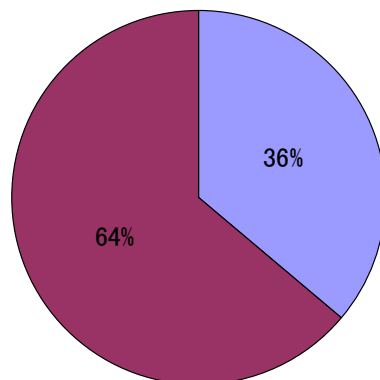

2-b-1

Category No.2
Questions regarding the control of US-origin items by your customers
(b-2)
Your customers have asked you to change your US-orign products to those of non US-origin.

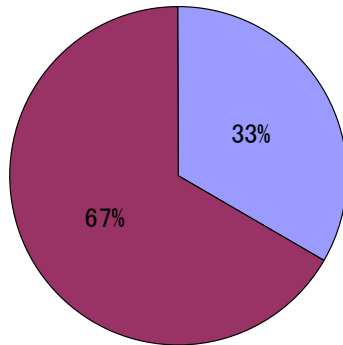

2-b-2

Category No.3
Questions regarding the location of your company's overseas manufacturing sites
(a)
Do you have facilities in non-US countries whrere you manufacture any list-controlled items?

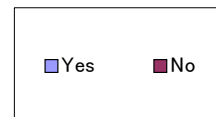

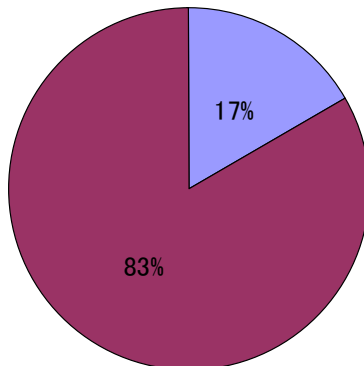

3-a

Category No.3
Questions regarding the location of your company's overseas manufacturing sites
(b-1)
You have ever considered establishing your manufacturing sites in the US.

3-b-1

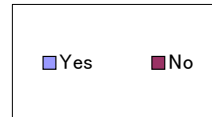

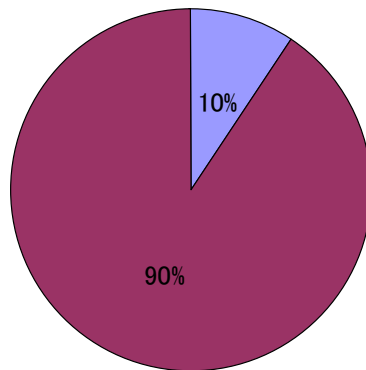

Category No.3
Questions regarding the location of your company's overseas manufacturing sites
(b-2)
You have considered the US as a country of your manufacturing sites, but gave no consideration on each country's export control laws and regulations.

3-b-2

Category No.3
Questions regarding the location of your company's overseas manufacturing sites
(b-3)

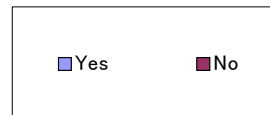

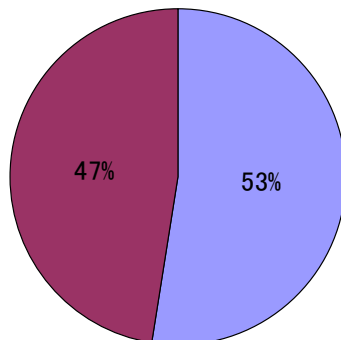

The US was one of the options. One reason for ruling it out was the existence of its strict export controls.

3-b-3

Category No.4
Questions regarding the impact on the economy
(a-1)

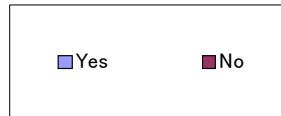

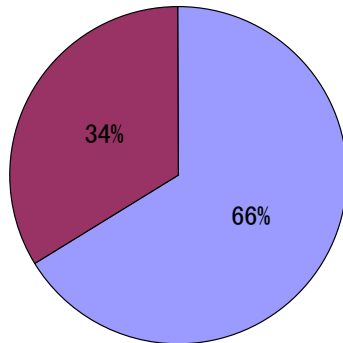

Do you think that the amount of US-origin items you procure will increase if the extraterritorial application of the US regulations is removed?

4-a-1

Category No.4
Questions regarding the impact on the economy
(b-1)

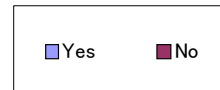

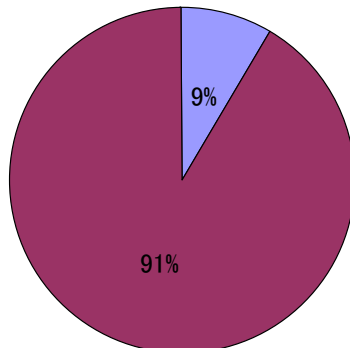

Do you incur additional costs for complying with the US export control regulations?

4-b-1

Category No.5
General questions
(a)

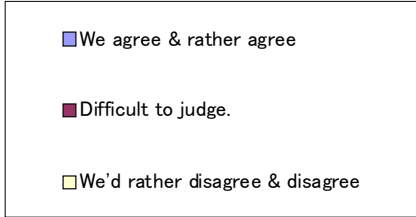

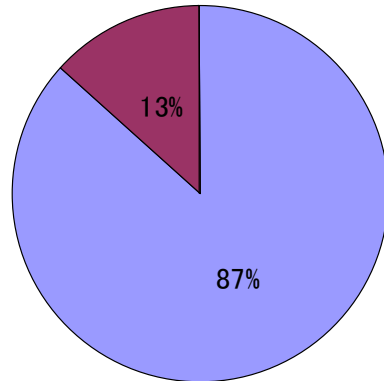

Have you ever encountered any advertising or marketing efforts by a third party that use the absence of US-origin components or exemptions from US export controls as a selling point?

5-a

Category No.6
Questions regarding your thoughts about the US re-export controls
(a)

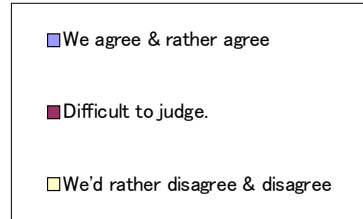

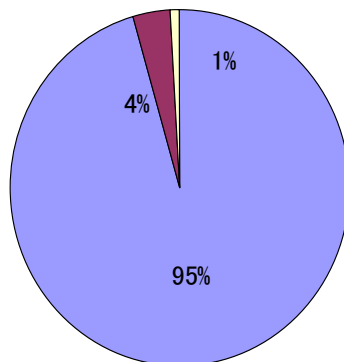

The US Government should stop the extraterritorial application of its export controls since it's a violation of the International Law.

6-a

Category No.6
Questions regarding your thoughts about the US re-export controls
(b)

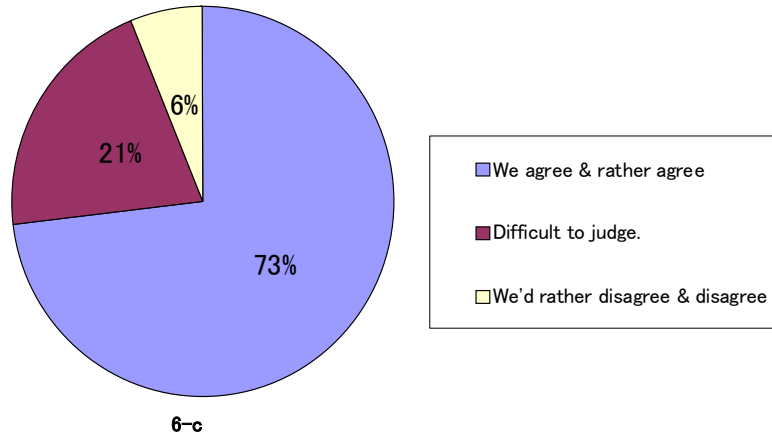

For the reason of diversion concerns, the extraterritorial application of the US export controls is rather necessary to the countries who have no export control laws and regulations, but not necessary to Japan where export controls are implemented as strictly as other member countries of the international export control regimes.

6-b

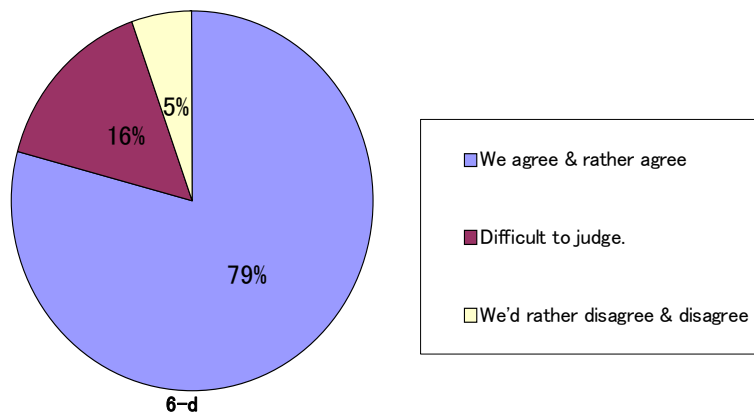

Category No.6
Questions regarding your thoughts about the US re-export controls
(c)

The current system would rather exclude US-origin items –even non-sensitive ones– from non-US companies' transactions simply because they are of US-origin.

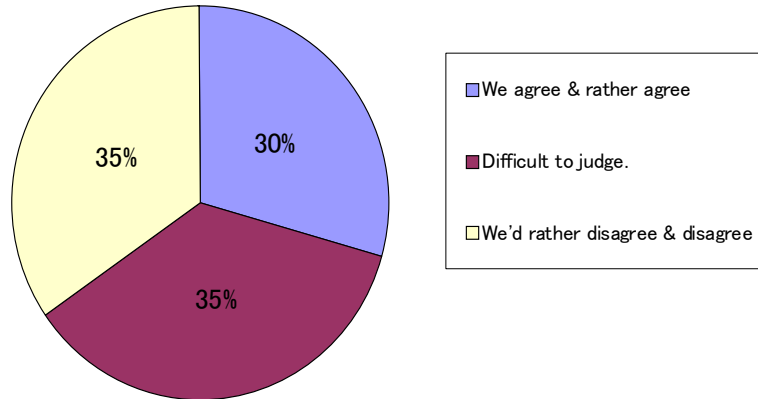

Category No.6
Questions regarding your thoughts about the US re-export controls
(d)

The extraterritorial application of the US export controls is giving not only a negative impact on the US economy but also a negative image of the US itself to foreign countries.

Category No.6
Questions regarding your thoughts about the US re-export controls
(e)

The extraterritorial application of the US export controls is rather necessary because export controls are still insufficient in many countries.

6-e